

Matter of Reardon
Del. Supr. No. 100, 1997 (3/20/97)
Board Case No. 4, 1996

Disciplinary Rules: DLRPC 8.1(b), 8.4(b), 8.4(c) and 8.4(d).

Sanctions Imposed: Two-Year Probation.

The Delaware Supreme Court publicly reprimanded Dennis A. Reardon, Esquire, for failing to file state personal income tax returns and for failing to pay state and federal taxes. Unpaid federal and state taxes, excluding interest and penalties, totaled approximately $46,000. Mr. Reardon also falsely certified to the Court that he had filed and paid his taxes on a timely basis.

The Court's order placed Mr. Reardon on a two-year period of probation, during which he was required to enter into, and comply with, payment agreements with the taxing authorities.